

KRVIA MASTERS INTRODUCTORY WORKSHOP

WALK CITY COLLAGE CITY

16 17 18 AUGUST

Let us be honest, The World is Not Flat and our cities most certainly are not simple. The cities that shape the world today are themselves an accretion of centuries of transformations and mutations. As Urban Designers, Conservationists and Urban Thinkers it is fundamental that we develop the tools of extracting the various layers of accretion. The City, often appears to be a collage made of a collection of diverse sets of objects, collapsing to create some sort of apparent symphony. But as one moves through the city and cuts the thickness of this collage we decipher the various histories of the city. These precision walks through the city can help build the logic of the city at different levels, revealing the topography, the hydrography, the ecology, the morphology and the anthropology of the city, through the physical experience of a body moving in space.
